

To Be a Tree

Activity 9

Family and Friends: Things To Do Together

We are exploring trees, tree parts, and tree growth. Here are some activities you and your child can do together:

- Talk about how trees are like people and how they are different. Think about what we can learn from trees.
- Together, draw a family tree that represents your immediate family.
- Take a walk as a family, and let your child (a) show you where to find all the different parts of a tree and (b) tell you about what they do.
- Find as many different kinds of bark, leaves, seeds, and twigs as you can.
- Explore a tree with your eyes closed.

Help build your child's vocabulary by using some of these new words in your conversations:

We are reading the following books in class. Check them out from your library, and invite your child to share them with you.
